SPRING EDITION

APRIL 2022

Soon Spring will be here!

I for one am very happy to see this winter come to an end. We will be able to get out to the range, and shoot some of those guns we knew we had to have! We always need just one more, I found a lot of very nice old guns I knew I was meant to have.

We must all look to the future!

We must keep our youth interested in the shooting sports. We must all do our part to support the 2nd Amendment and pass it on to the next generation. With the rise of our show admission, we will once again be on track to make donation to our youth shooters and shooting groups. That being our primary mission.

Spring is close I can almost hear the walleye calling my name. My honor to be your president again.

President DTGCA Bill Braun

9. Italy

Manufacturer: Manufacture: Beretta Modello 1935
Nazi: 7.65 mm Pistole 671 (i). (32 ACP)

While Mussolini and the Fascists took control of Italy in 1923, it was the first of the Axis nations to fall, signing an armistice with the Allies in September 1943.

However, : "Il Duce" was spirited to northern Italy, which was still under German control, becoming the RSI (Italian Socialist Republic) and further reinforced with German Troops. This included Beretta's facility in Brescia, where they had been making the model 1934 (in .380 ACP) for the Italian Army & Navy plus the model 1935. Basically a model 1934 chambered in 7.65mm/.32 ACP, the 1935 was initially made for the Italian Air Force, but also exported to Germany—in addition to lesser orders from Romania and Finland. Under the RSI, model 1934 production was limited to focus on the model 1935, continuing until the end of the war with increasingly diminished markings and finish quality.

Manufactured in 1944, this example is in the serial number range of 440,000 to 615,000 for production under control of and for Nazi Germany. While all have the "4UT" Italian Military Commission inspection stamp, the Waffenamt "Waa 162" stamp was only very sporadically used.
